National RV is proud to introduce the 2001 Sea View motor home—designed for those who desire the rugged dependability of an SUV without sacrificing a luxurious living space.

Sea View is built with a specialized exterior finish that will stand up to the worst elements. The secret to its durability is in our innovative gel-coat wall siding and Centrex doors exterior finish. Centrex is a polymer used in automobile body panels around the world due to its tremendous resistance to wear and tear. It's very easy to maintain and is immune to damage from UV radiation. While painted motor homes require frequent touch ups and re-painting, the Sea View will look as good as new for years to come with minimal effort.

National RV's attention to detail is evident in the tight fit and finish of the Sea View. All of our cabinets fit flush with the roof and walls. You won't find any rubber molding to hide gaps between cabinets and walls or unsightly staples to attach interior finish paneling (which can leave holes in your cabinets). This form fitting interior is built on the strongest foundation in the industry-our patented Duraframe® sub-floor chassis system. The Duraframe® significantly reduces chassis twisting which can cause the structure of a motor home to deteriorate with age resulting in those dreaded “squeaks and rattles.” Top to bottom, the attractive Sea View is built to last.
