The innovative Rage’n RVT dual-purpose ramp trailers are built on heavy duty trailer chassis with cavernous "drive-in" cargo areas so you can get all your gear to the backcountry and still enjoy the comforts of home. Steel reinforced floors with thick Sturdi-Wood® decking and durable vinyl flooring are built to withstand the frequent loading, unloading and hauling of heavy loads.

But Rage’n RVT is much more than just a great cargo hauler. Fully equipped kitchen and bathroom facilities make the concept of "roughing it" just a distant memory. The cargo area quickly converts to additional living space, with fold-down sofas, dinettes, and beds. In some models, a front bedroom provides privacy and comfort. All models have plenty of convertible sleeping space, with fold-down sleeper sofas and/or convertible dinette, and a pull-down rear queen bed.

National RV went beyond merely crossing a cargo trailer with a travel trailer. Attention to the particular needs of motorized adventurers has shaped the final product greatly. Rage’n RVT users are more likely than other RV owners to find themselves in remote locations, far from the conveniences of civilization. For this reason, Rage’n RVT is built with extra large holding tanks for extended stays far from civilization. And of course the motorized toys can also get thirsty many miles from the nearest gas station. A 36 gallon fuel tank and pumping station keep them gassed up for adventure.

National RV is leading the way in perfecting this newest class of RV. Our nearly 40 years of experience in building quality recreational vehicles has contributed to a higher level of quality, functionality and "fit & finish."

See your National RV dealer today to discover the possibilities of adventure in a 2003 Rage’n RVT.
Every structural component of a Rage’n RVT ramp trailer is engineered for unmatched strength and durability. The roof is a perfect example. Engineered wooden trusses are arched for both strength and superior water shedding. At the edges, the one-piece rubber roof sheath wraps around a sheet-metal radius before joining with the wall on the vertical plane. Other coaches have a sharp-cornered roof or an edge molding on the top of the roof that inhibits runoff and invites puddling at the seams where water can penetrate and inflict the most damage. Air conditioning ducts are built right into the roof framing (on models over 20’ in length). Try finding ducted air conditioning on competing coaches! Then there’s the one-piece Ozite® fabric ceiling which reduces ambient noise levels while having a clean, seamless appearance…and the ¼” Sturdi-Wood® decking…and the thick fiberglass blanket insulation…the list goes on and on! And we’re still just talking about the roof!

See your nearest Rage’n RVT dealer to discover the same attention to quality engineering and manufacturing throughout the entire coach.

BUILT FOR FUN!

Lower the ramp and back the toys out! Rage’n RVT is built for fun, and comes fully equipped for more fun than you can handle! The optional 36 gallon fuel tank and pump station keep the toys powered up. With Rage’n RVT’s 100 gallon fresh water tank and optional 4 kW Onan® generator, you’ll be well equipped for extended stays in the back country. And if the toys aren’t entertaining enough, there’s even an optional Windeguard® satellite television dish!
